

WORK AT EXPOSITION GUARDED FROM FIRE.

Chemical Engine Is Assigned to Site as Nucleus for the Department.

OPERATED BY BUILDING HANDS.

Five Whistles Will Sound Alarm When There Is Danger and Workmen Will All Respond.

Five whistles sounded quickly at short intervals when a fire started on the Exposition site. The signal was arranged yesterday morning at a consultation between Director of Works Taylor and Chief Sweeney of the City Fire Department.

The fire chief sent out to the site a double eight-gallon chemical engine, in charge of an experienced engineer. The apparatus will be housed in an open stable, immediately next to the engine house.

A steam fire engine will reinforce the temporary Exposition fire department today. It will be accompanied by a hose reel carrying 100 feet of hose. This apparatus will be housed in the ambulance shed north of the temporary hospital.

With this apparatus in place the grounds will be fairly well protected until better arrangements can be made. The steam engine will be located in the heart of the lumber district, where piles of inflammable material thirty feet high are thicker.

Workmen to Act as Volunteers. Both of the machines will be drawn by the workmen on the site. It is impossible to use horses to draw the engines at the Exposition grounds. If the alarm sounds spectators will see a revival of the days when when the fire department department grasped the leading rope of the ancient pump engine.

These arrangements will be kept in force until the Exposition Company can order from the factories as many engines as will be needed and can locate at various parts of the grounds fire-alarm boxes. Secretary Stevens stated yesterday that the company could secure as many fire engines and attendant apparatus for the grounds as needed. The manufacturers being anxious to supply the engines at a price without expense.

Chief Sweeney has not determined which of his city crews he will send out to the site. Only a few men will be sent. These will have instructions to form the working force of the Exposition Company until an emergency fire department for the construction period.

Putting in Telegraph Lines. G. E. Paine, district manager of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, and George J. Francis, district superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, Secretary Stevens stated yesterday that the company would secure as many fire engines and attendant apparatus for the grounds as needed. The manufacturers being anxious to supply the engines at a price without expense.

The telephone company and the Western Union Telegraph company will have their lines in working order within the Administration building by the last of the coming week.

Toole of Montana, accompanied by the Executive Committee of the World's Fair Commission from that State, arrived yesterday to select a site for the State building and to confer with the Exposition Commission regarding the proposed exhibit. The Commission is already working on plans for the building.

An expensive wreck, due to a collision between a train of grain cars of the Chicago and Alton and a train of coal cars of the Wiggins Ferry Company, is the result of a dispute over the crossing of the Chicago and Alton tracks.

The Wiggins Ferry Company endeavored to lay a switch from the Belt Railroad to the old Union Elevator. To do this it was necessary to cross the Chicago and Alton tracks.

The Chicago and Alton officials, because they said the Wiggins Ferry Company was blocking their tracks when they were most needed. Assurances were made on this point by the Wiggins Ferry Company, but no agreement could be reached.

The action of the Chicago and Alton officials was noted by the men who had the right of way. They were angry and the Wiggins company was forced to stop.

A signal pushed the coal cars along at a rapid rate of speed. When they reached the crossing there came the heavy crashing sound of broken wood and the creaking of twisted steel, telling of the damage.

Wrecking crews were hurried to the scene. The wreck of the grain cars was complete, while the big steel coal cars suffered much less. The track was badly damaged and the coal was scattered all over the place.

SWEENEY WILLING TO RESIGN SEAT.

Offers to Retire From House of Delegates if Burke Will Do the Same.

BELIEVES BURKE NOT SINCERE.

Extends the Same Proposition to Kelly and Geraghty, and Says He Will Bet His Property on the Result.

Members of the House of Delegates, among them Mr. Sweeney, believe that Mr. Burke of the Sixteenth Ward is not anxious to have the lower branch of the Municipal Council abolished. Mr. Sweeney says that Mr. Burke's resolution asking the City Council to state how and when the House can be abolished was merely a "little political game of ping pong, in which Burke pinged a little and we ponged pretty hard, to Burke's sorrow."

Mr. Sweeney proclaims an eagerness to test Mr. Burke's sincerity. He makes a novel proposition, not only to Mr. Burke, but to Messrs. Kelly and Geraghty. It is this: "I'm willing to give Burke a chance to show he's game. If he'll do it, I'll resign from the House of Delegates at the next meeting. In order to keep him from resigning, I'll bet my property on the result. If he doesn't like his legislative associates, I'll enter into a written agreement with him that both of us resign our seats."

Mr. Sweeney's proposition, if he's game, and really is tired of the House, and really thinks the House ought to be abolished, let him accept my proposition. If the proposition is interesting enough for him, I'll enlarge it. I'll bet my property on the result. If he doesn't like his legislative associates, I'll enter into a written agreement with him that both of us resign our seats."
